

Halloween Time Scavenger Hunt Around Disneyland® RESORT

Disneyland® Park

- On the main street you follow if you look up after a while, you'll find a 20th century musician with a pompadour style.
- At the festively frightening house Halloween cheer seems to overflow, there is a noble steed hitched and ready to go.
- Where jazz comes alive, there are many places in which to take pause. In one window, you can find a collection of skeleton items, who all love Sandy-Claws.
- In Frontierland is a plant you can't miss, growing ghoulish gourds unlike any you've seen before this.
- "To Infinity and beyond!" this pumpkin would shout to all. Say hi to Mickey Mouse and Walt while you visit this intergalactic pal.
- In the afternoon this frightful pair may be found in New Orleans Square, go say hello, take a picture, but don't have a nightmare.

Downtown Disney® District

- Tired of the fright and want something with more flair? Check out the The Disney Dress Shop and you may find a stylish pumpkin there.
- If during the day you're searching for a sweet treat, in Downtown Disney District you'll find an apple like what Snow White had to eat.

Disney California Adventure® Park

- At the Collector's Fortress, monsters run amok after 3. If you pay attention to the screen, a familiar ghostly face you may see.
- In a land full of cars we have a ghoulish blue friend, if you're going to Casa Della Tires he is there to welcome you in.
- All beware, it's the season of the dead. On Buena Vista Street, you might even stumble upon a man with no head.
- At the entrance of the park, you'll find a frightful sight. He's someone you can expect to see better at night.
- At the top of an iconic tower you'll miss it if you look down, you'll find a horde of vampiric creatures flying around.

*Separate Theme Park admission and park reservation required for park entry.